

EUROPEAN LABOUR LAW JOURNAL

ISSN 2013-9525

Vol. 16, n. 2, June 2025

Consulta en línea desde Intranet

Academic Contributions

The legitimacy of modern data processing in the workplace Johannes Warter	179
From healthcare to employment: Tackling the regulatory challenges of in-body wearable devices at work in the European Union Stefania Marassi and Mária Éva Földes	195
Could the minimum wage directive weather future financial storms? studying the potential to ensure upward convergence of minimum wages Félix Dôme and Ane Aranguiz	212
Protection of the occupational health and safety of teleworkers Merle Erikson and Annika Rosin	228
AI surveillance: Reclaiming privacy through informational control Christine Carter	245
On the open borders of information and consultation rights in the EU acquis Lidia Gil Otero and Christina Schnittler	259
Unlimited employee autonomy over working time? The potentially empty notion of autonomous workers in EU law Gábor Kártyás	281

European Development

Indirect discrimination and the gendered realities of part-time work. Review of the Joined Cases IK (C-184/22) and CM (C-185/22) v KfH Kuratorium für Dialyse und Nierentransplantation eV , EU:C:2022:1011 Sara Hungler	297
Exclusion of posted workers from certain tax benefits: Reflections on the CJEU decision in case C-387/22 Raluca Dimitriu	307
Avoiding another 'Viking and Laval' moment – a critical analysis of the AG opinion on the Adequate Minimum Wage Directive, Case C-19/23 Nicola Countouris	315

Corrigendum

Corrigendum	NPI
-------------	-----